THE GHOST OF ABSOLUTISM

The breakdown of parliamentary government in Europe, which has given Italy a Fascisti regime, Spain and Greece dictators and other countries cause for worry, admits of but one explanation: The people in those countries in which parliamentary government has failed were not prepared for it. The success of parliamentary government in Great Britain, within sight of the Continent, shows that a nation trained for generations in self-government can make the parliamentary system function. Across the Channel nations which until latterly were strangers to self-government are proving that a complex system of government by the people cannot be adopted and made to function smoothly from the start.

The fact is that in most European countries the people expect too much of their government. They have looked so long to autocratic monarchs to satisfy their needs that they cannot realize that the government in a democracy is the people themselves. This is brought out by Professor Moritz J. Bonn, author of "The Crisis of European Democracy" who says that the idea of the divine right of kings, which perpetuated the ghost of absolutism in Europe long after its physical life was ended, still survives in the popular consciousness, although it has now been transferred to democratic government. "Consequently, when modern cabinets and parliaments do not give us what we feel entitled to expect from a power set up by an express fiat of the deity, we think it has betrayed its trust. We might manage our political life much better were we to get down to the more modest and rational point of view that a government may indeed inflict immeasurable suffering on a nation; but that, no matter how it is constituted, it has extremely limited power to make a nation happy. Our superstition that governments can work impossible miracles really lies at the bottom of most criticism of representative institutions."

The ghost of absolutism must be laid before representative government can be successful. As long as a people looks to a parliament to make it happy, without itself doing what it can to produce happiness, success will not come to it. Signs are not wanting that this same expectation of the impossible of the government is not wholly absent from this country. Whether imported from abroad or developed within our own borders, an increasing inclination to lean upon the government has been apparent in the past decade or so. The growth of this spirit would be fatal to our institutions. We cannot hope, any more than Europe can, to make popular government a success unless the people themselves assume their share of the burden and individually carry their own loads. Our government returns no more than the people, who are the government, put into it. We have our warning from Europe.—St Paul Pioneer-Press.

LIBERALS ABOUT HALF OUT OF ISSUES

H. L. Mencken of the Baltimore "Sun" and associated papers, who is the uncrowned poet-laureate of the liberals in America in his last syndicate article, complains of the passing of the radical-liberal tribe of thinkers and talkers, of which he has long been an honored leader. He lists William Allen White, Norman Hapgood, William Hard, Miss Tarbell, and Mr. Willard, as among the brave spirits of the past, who have grown footsore from marching, and mouthsore from blowing trumpets to arouse unre-

THE COLONIAL SLAVE QUESTION

When the Quakers and Germans of Pennsylvania first tried to rouse public sentiment against traffic in African slaves, they kindled the fire that was to grow stronger and bigger for the next one hundred and fifty years, until war should stamp out the institution altogether.

In colonial times slavery existed in all of their thirteen colonies. But by far the greatest number of the slaves lived and worked in the south. The slavery question never became very important in the north, perhaps because the work in the north was of a different character than that of the southern plantations.

Slaves had few rights. They belonged to their masters. And the law protected the interests of the masters, as a rule. In the north the slaves were usually domestic servants. They were quite humanely treated and, so far as we know, quite happy.

In the extreme south a great many slaves were kept. They did practically all of the work. They lived in the rice swamps and worked their lives away. There was no merriment and dancing and light-heartedness for them. They had been imported from the West Indies and Africa. Their whole lives were spent in hard work.

But a little farther north in the Maryland country, they were a little better off. Here they occupied a better position. They were fairly well treated and for the most part, happy.

Of course the wealthy planters who owned great tracts planted in tobacco and rice were in great need of labor. And the cheaper the better. African labor was certainly cheaper. And British trading ships brought the slaves to their very doors.

Since so great a number of slaves could be used and since the trade was so lucrative, it is no wonder that England balked at any attempt on the part of any colony to restrict or limit the trade.

We sometimes get the mistaken idea that slavery was an institution that grew up in the years before the Civil War. But it had its beginning in the very earliest colonial times. South Carolina had been getting her work done by slaves since the first of the colonists planted a settlement there.

NEW EMBROIDERIES OF INTEREST TO HOME MAKERS

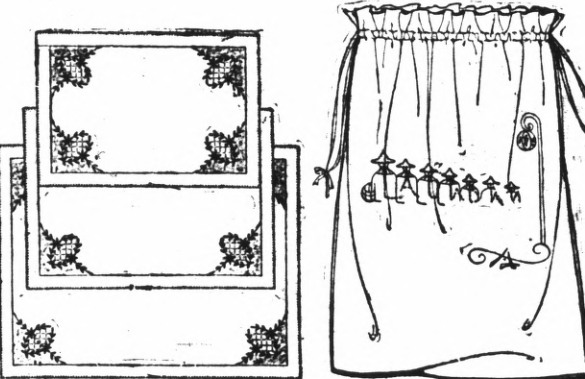

A Bag for the Laundry and Charming Scarfs for Boudoir or Dining Room

By MONA MULLEN

WHATEVER needs the housewife may have in the way of embroideries. Fashion seems to supply them this season. Consideration seems to have been taken of every nook and corner, and at the same time, the few hours that the modern woman has to devote to fancy work have not been overlooked. The new embroideries are as simple as they are beautiful.

Two interesting novelties are pictured here. Only the motifs for the laundry bag are furnished in the transfer, and not the shape. Unbleached muslin may be used, with a bias binding and draw-strings of linen to match the color scheme of the room. The Chinese hats are of yellow chambray, buttonhole-stitched with brown floss, and the queues which spell the word "Laundry" are done in black chain stitch. Whatever color is used for the binding is also employed to outline the bodies of the Chinamen. The Chinese lantern and letter may be done in red, lavender and yellow in solid satin stitch.

The transfer for the scarfs furnishes three different sizes—12 x 17, 14 x 19 and 18 x 23. One may be used for a tray cloth, if desired. On a background of white linen, the design is attractive with the appliqué in pink linen. The flowers are worked in lazy-daisy stitch in pink, the leaves and stems being in black. For the centers of the flowers French knots or solid satin stitches may be used. A dainty edging in button-hole stitch in pink rope silk would certainly add to the effectiveness of the pieces.

The real trouble with these gentlemen is that they have been undone by American common sense and prosperity.

It is hard to gather an assembly of the discontented when fat pay envelopes await every Saturday night, and when the dinner-pail is discarded only because the workman prefers not to be bothered carrying it, and goes to a restaurant instead. Even Mr. Debs, as Mr. Mencken says, in his article, has simply become an interesting historical monument of a discontent that was, instead of an element of danger. But we can stand it.

An optimist is a man who treats a dollar as if it were a dime, but a man who treats a dime as if it were a dollar is only a tight-wad.

It's a good bet that Mr. Mussolini couldn't win a popularity contest around League of Nations headquarters.

WASTE OF TIME AS BAD AS WASTE OF MONEY

By S. W. STRAUS,
President American Society for Thrift.

NOT enough attention is paid to the better understanding of the values of thrift of time.

Ample effort is being given to the encouragement of money thrift. The American people are not lacking for guidance in the matter of saving money. But all too little thought is bestowed in the matter of developing greater economy in the use of time.

S. W. STRAUS

Idleness is sheer thriftlessness. It is just as definitely a form of waste as is the habit of squandering money. And like financial prodigality it leads always away from peace, contentment and happiness.

The happiest persons in the world are those who work. How quickly time passes when we are in the midst of employment; how slowly it drags when we are idle.

What Foods Are Cheapest

REGULATION of the food budget of the home requires familiarity with current food prices. Food values also enter into this question. What type of foods yield the most nutriment for the least money, and at the same time appeal to the family taste? These things merit study and observation. Careful consideration of food advertisements is perhaps one of the best methods of becoming posted on the subject in general.

Advertising is an important factor in modern life. Everything we are likely to need, from the cradle to the grave, is persistently called to our attention. No matter where we go, we cannot escape being told what is good for us, nor reminded of the things that make life worth living—and how cheaply we can get them.

This is direct advertising. And equally effective, sometimes, is indirect advertising. Just now, the food packers of America are involuntarily doing this indirect advertising on a very large scale, because of the exceedingly large food pack of last year. Canned foods are now being sold at remarkably low prices. This is not done with the specific purpose of advertising, but rather for the sake of marketing surplus stock.

Last summer, there were unusually large crops of practically all the staple vegetables. In consequence the canners worked over-time, packing a tremendous quantity of these foods. To get a quick market for the supply on hand, they have adopted the plan of selling them at exceedingly low prices. In so doing, they have indirectly entered upon one of the most extensive advertising campaigns ever undertaken by them.

It is a campaign of education. Vast numbers of people, taking advantage of this great price-reduction, are learning the convenience, economy and excellence of ready-to-serve foods. In other words, they are being educated to eat more of them, in preference to the more expensive and less easily obtained fresh foods—so-called.

For instance, those who have used a dozen cans of corn, this year, will buy two dozen next year. And so it goes with all kinds of canned foods. "The proof of the pudding is in the eating." Ready-to-serve foods have advertised themselves for all time.

In figuring the comparative cost of fresh and canned foods, the season of the year must be taken into account. In all save the extreme southern and southwestern sections of the United States, fresh foods have to be carried a long distance in the winter months. Consequently, high prices must necessarily be charged for them. At this season, therefore, the economy of prepared foods is unquestionable.

Not alone in the low price, but in the value obtained from the canned products, as compared with that obtained from fresh foods. In the first place, fresh foods brought from a distance, and passing through innumerable hands en route, have lost the quality of "freshness" by the time the consumer gets them. They are therefore not worth their high price. The prepared foods, on the contrary, were canned while absolutely fresh, and their valuable properties have all been retained in the air-tight can. Secondly, there is no waste to be eliminated from the ready-to-serve foods, where as much must be removed from fresh foods before they are ready for cooking or serving.

Another economical feature of canned foods is the fact that many stores have frequent "special sales" of two cans for 25 cents, three for 29 cents, etcetera. As these prepared foods keep indefinitely, the consumer is not afraid to stock up with them and thus reap the benefit of the lower prices; in addition, gaining the convenience of having a variety always on hand, ready to serve at a moment's notice.

In reducing their surplus stock by reducing their prices, the American food-packers are really "casting their bread upon the waters." It will return to them, not only in enormous strengthened confidence on the part of the public. For there is a rapid spreading realization of the fact that nowhere are the laws of hygiene and sanitation more rigidly observed and enforced, today, than in the commercial preparation of the world's food. And when to this is added the further advantage of economy, the consumer is not slow to respond.

TELEPHONE OPERATOR SAVES THREE LIVES

Three persons in Malden, Mass., who had been overcome by coal gas, escaped death recently through the quick wit of Miss Alina Lucey, a telephone operator, and the courage of Mrs. John R. Ainsley. Fire in a small stove, the door of which was open, allowed gas to fill the living room where Mrs. Ainsley, her husband and her mother were taking a nap in their chairs. Mrs. Ainsley was awakened by a severe headache, but by a supreme effort, managed to drag herself to the telephone where she was able only to gasp the word "doctor" before collapsing. The telephone operator heard the feeble gasp, however, and immediately notified the police and a doctor living nearby. The physician, on his arrival, found all three persons unconscious.

Facts About the Telephone

The telephone was introduced into Uruguay by two Americans in 1881.

The number of telephones in Portland, Ore., have increased twenty-fold in the past 25 years.

In proportion to population Detroit has more than twice as many telephones as Paris.

The State of Virginia contains more telephones than the entire continent of Africa.

Exchange telephone calls in Connecticut increased more than 12½ per cent during 1925.

The American people spend over twice as much for tobacco as for telephone service.

Seattle expects to reach the 100,000 mark in telephones during 1926. At the beginning of the year the city had 96,993 telephones in use.

There are more telephones in the State of Vermont than in the whole of Mexico, although Mexico has 40 times as many inhabitants as Vermont.

MICHIGAN'S TELEPHONES

The half-millionth telephone instrument installed in the state of Michigan by the Michigan Bell Telephone Company was recently placed in operation. The 500,000th instrument went into the Ford motor plant at Iron Mountain, and the first call from the new instrument was one for Henry Ford at the River Rouge Ford plant in Detroit.

BROOKLYN NAVY YARD PERFECTS NEW UNDER-WATER TORCH TO BE USED IN RAISING WRECKED SUBMARINE

Sparks flew in showers at the Brooklyn Navy yard when Commander Edwin Ellsberg cut a one-inch steel plate with a newly invented torch which melts steel at any depth under water. This new torch, which burns inside an air bubble that it produces, will be used in a final effort to salvage Submarine S-51, sunk in collision with a coast liner off Block Island. A number of bodies of members of the crew are still in the hull of the submarine.

Secret Diplomacy Is Blamed for the Failure of League

(By O. TOLISCHUS)
(Copyright 1926, Universal Service)
GENEVA, Mar. 17.—"Secret diplomacy and secret agreements are responsible for the breakup of the special session of the League of Nations which was called to admit Germany to membership but shut the door in her face instead and compromised on admitting her later."

That statement was given to me by Foreign Minister Stresemann in an interview at the Railway station in Geneva tonight just before the German delegation left.

"Germany exceedingly regrets the unfortunate disappointing outcome of the session," said Stresemann.

"I am convinced nevertheless that the pacification of Europe will continue."

"But I want to state emphatically and I hope that the public opinion of the world will bear us out in this, that no blame for the outcome at Geneva can be attached to Germany. If there is any blame to be placed it must be placed to secret understandings and secret diplomacy."

On April 10, 1926, all roads will lead to East Shore park, when the Richmond Firemen Relief fund will hold their seventh annual ball.

Lenny Shaw's orchestra of ten pieces has been secured, and all are assured that they will have plenty of the best music available.

A special feature of this year's ball will be for the ladies, every lady attending the ball will be presented with a favor, which will be very useful and of pleasing design. This will be a surprise and it is something that can be used every day and still be a remembrance of the good time had on that occasion.

Capt. Wells, chairman of the decorating committee has his men all set and ready to go, the regular feature held every year, The Fireman's Ball, will be there as usual, with the regular carnations which are also for the ladies.

Chief Cooper heads the reception committee and he assures all that everyone that attends will be taken care of and shown a good time.

Chas. Morissette, Jr., W. T. Moore, J. F. Lathrop and I. S. Conrad will be in charge of the floor and as they are all past masters in the art of terpsichore dancers are sure of having a good time.

S. G. Davidson has charge of the refreshments and check room—this committee has had experience in this line and all attending will be assured that they will have plenty of attendants to take care of this committee.

Thomas M. Carlson, Richmond attorney and World War veteran, according to advices from San Francisco, has been chosen as chairman of the Richmond branch of the Veterans Legal Service Bureau, operated by Blackstone Post of San Francisco, composed of members of the legal profession. Because of the numerous requests coming from all over California, branch legal service bureaus have been established throughout the state.

The purpose of the bureau is to aid and assist indigent veterans, their families and dependents who find themselves confronted with litigation or veteran welfare problems. Membership in the American Legion is not required of deserving applicants.

The bureau has its headquarters in the law offices of Hyde and Scott, Hearst building, San Francisco, and is under the direction of a special committee consisting of Ralph W. Scott, chairman; Major E. Enright, Barroll McNear, Philip B. Boggs, Donald Gallagher, William M. Maxfield, Dean Cherry, Thomas Cairns, Wallace E. Hyde and Stewart G. Mason, all members of the bar of the State of California.

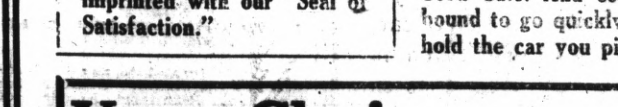

The bureau has also undertaken to satisfy all laws and regulations affecting the claims of veterans of the World War against the municipal, county, state or federal government and agencies. This digest of laws affecting veterans will be published by Blackstone Post for distribution without charge through the Veterans Legal Service Bureau headquarters.

Wallace E. Hyde, commander of Blackstone Post, has issued a call for volunteer attorneys to assist Chairman Thomas M. Carlson in carrying out the work of the Richmond branch of the Veterans Legal Service Bureau, which will have its headquarters in the law office of Wilbur S. Pierce and Thomas M. Carlson, Richmond, where any needy veteran may apply for assistance.

FASHION SHOW IN PICTURE AT THE CALIFORNIA

What is so rare as a beautiful fashion show on the screen? Only the day in June of course.

When the show comes, however, as it did last night in the premiere at the Palace of Colleen Moore, "Irene," it is worthy of all praise. This reviewer is delighted to give it.

Gowns on beautiful women are like petals on a rose. Colleen Moore and a troupe of rapturous beautiful Hollywood corsettes parade in dress creation that give them the semblance of gorgeous flowers.

Miss Moore herself is a thing of beauty and a joy forever.

"Irene," like Miss Moore's former triumph, "Sally," is based on a musical comedy hit. Lloyd Hughes, George K. Arthur and Charles Murray are featured. The picture was produced by John McCormick, directed by Alfred E. Green and released through I.P.R. National.

Other features on the same program include "Felix Fans the Flames," a Felix the cat cartoon; "International News"; "Ideas of Favorite Irish Songs," with Larry Canelo at the organ.

New Idea of New York Presented In Richmond Picture

To the casual visitor, New York City is a heartless place, cold as steel and lacking in hospitality. Its people generally are pictured as merciless money-grabbers, and its ghetto district is the cause of many shudders throughout the land.

Now it is envisioned as "The Beautiful City" in a motion picture of that title, which is delighting capacity audiences at the Richmond Theatre. Richard Barthelmess is the star of this First National picture, the supporting cast including Dorothy Gish and William Powell.

To the author, Edmund Goulding, New York is in truth "the beautiful city." This was the first impression it created when he arrived here from England many years ago. He did not fail to see the squalor of the streets or the destitution all about.

But he did observe that the persons who lived in such squalor and destitution were happy, because New York was their home. The theme of this picture is beautiful. Director Kenneth Webb has brought this human appeal to the screen, with the result that "The Beautiful City" is a picture that will appeal to all through its heart throbs and genuineness.

Other features include "Fire Away," an Al St. John comedy; "Trizma," the screen feature.

Antique Jewelry in Vogue

The rage for antique jewelry is with us again. Everyone who is anyone is digging up old family heirlooms and jewels that belonged to grandmother to wear in striking contrast to one's modish costume today.

No matter what the style, metal or stone in which it is fashioned, if it is more than 50 years old it is extremely smart.

Estelle Clark, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer player, wears a very beautiful necklace with earrings to match which her father brought to her from Venice, Italy, when he visited her recently.

These ornaments are gold filigree, minutely done by hand, of the Venetian and Florentine schools. Though foreign jewelry is very much sought after at present, antiques do not necessarily have to come from abroad to be smart. Pieces of American jewelry, necklaces, earrings, bracelets and rings add a touch of chic to the smartest costume today.

Miracle of Science Restores Hearing to Oakland Merchant After Fifty-four Deaf Years

(By Universal Service)

OAKLAND, March 17.—A new miracle of modern science, the restoration of hearing to a man who was deaf 54 years—was revealed in Oakland today.

Charles F. Allen, Oakland business man, able to hear today perfectly after living in a world of silence for more than half a century, revealed details of a remarkable operation believed to be the first of its kind in surgical history—which made it possible for him to hear.

Since he was three years old, Allen was totally without hearing. The modern miracle man, the surgeon, whose name is withheld for ethical reasons, discovered that as result of scarlet fever in Allen's early childhood, bones surrounding the tube from the outer to the inner ear had grown almost together, cutting off communication from the outer ear to the delicate nerves that convey sound to the brain.

His problem was to effect a new life of communication. He made a tube of vulcanized rubber, comparable in size to a quarter-inch lead pencil. This was hollow, permitting vibration of sound waves.

The first tube worked—but not enough to insure perfect hearing. Three weeks ago a second tube was inserted between the inner and outer ear.

"And then I heard," Allen said today. "For the first time I heard the voices of my children. I was in the world of speaking men and women. It was a joy that almost broke my heart."

But the new found boon also had its troubles. Noises of automobiles, street cars, the rumble and crash of modern civilization breaking through the barrier of silence of 54 years, almost drove Allen to nervous prostration. Today, three weeks after his cure, he still trembles at the sound of street cars.

Allen, now a successful business man, achieved success in spite of deafness. After leaving a school of deaf and dumb, he became an apprentice printer, and finally entered journalism, rising to publisher of a South Dakota newspaper.

He is a former president of the South Dakota Editorial Association and was prominent in politics of the State.

PROBLEMS OF VETS TOLD AT KIWANIS CLUB

Addressing the Kiwanians at their weekly luncheon yesterday, Allen B. Bixby, department commander of the American Legion, outlined the work completed and planned by that organization. War veterans were guests of honor at the luncheon.

He told of the problems confronting the veterans after the war and the necessity for banding together to solve these problems. First among these was the question of rehabilitation, he said, and that this problem still demands attention. The Legion has fought for legislation, compensation and hospitalization as the best solution. He discussed the endowment fund for children of war veterans sponsored by the organization and the interest taken by it in the Boy Scout movement.

Bixby urged a strong backing for the Legion in its work as he maintained that the problems confronting them effect the people at large. He praised the work of the Boy Scout movement and declared it to be the greatest force in combating crime and Bolshevism in the rising generation.

Joe Hirth was chairman of the day and Miss Vivian Vaughn rendered two piano solos as features of the musical program. Price Roberts led the singing. The attendance prize was awarded to Judge Roth and G. A. Rader received second prize.

Through the Ages

The old saying of save for a "Rainy Day" is perhaps as old as time itself.

The big men of America started life by saving a part of their earnings no matter how little they made—the result was that they learned the lesson of thrift and economy—and later their wealth could be counted in large figures.

No man or woman can afford to go through life without putting something aside weekly to take care of the future.

USED CAR SALE
IS TO BE HELD
BY J. P. STROM

"An interesting indication of the evolution of automobile merchandising is reflected in the fact that today every element of safety surrounds the purchase of good used automobiles from established dealers," asserted J. P. Strom, who is conducting an unusual used car sale at his salesrooms on Macdonald avenue, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

"The used car is just as much a part of the stock of the auto dealer as his new cars, his tires, accessories or parts. A large percentage of new car sales involve acceptance of good used cars, and in many cases dealers overhaul the cars and in any event make certain that they will deliver satisfactory transportation to the buyers."

"Aside from the ability of the good used car to deliver thousands of miles of travel, the best inducement the established dealer can offer the prospective buyer of a used car is perfect contentment with his investment, for he looks forward to the time when this customer may wish to buy another car."

"This progressiveness on the part of the auto dealer of today has resulted to the benefit of buyers of used cars, who now do not need to take the risk of disappointment as was often the case in the earlier days of the automobile."

ROYAL MASONS MEET

The Royal Arch of Masons held a stated business meeting at the Masonic hall last night with W. Urquhart in charge.

Mrs. Schwartz to Give Testimony In Insurance Trial

Mrs. Henri Schwartz, widow of the Walnut Creek chemist who last August committed suicide when Oakland police were closing in upon him after his "perfect crime" of killing an innocent victim was discovered, is expected to take the stand today in Federal Judge, Frank H. Kerrigan's court, in a suit brought by the Northern Life Insurance company of Seattle to cancel a policy held by Schwartz.

The company holds that in committing suicide, Schwartz violated a clause in the contract which makes the policy void. They hold that the suicide occurred a few days prior to the expiration of the time set in the clause. Mrs. Schwartz is expected to deny this in her testimony.

It is also contended by the company that Schwartz invalidated his policy by concealing that fact that he was working with high explosives.

"Peeping Tom" In
Martinez Is Found

Sarghetti was arrested following a chase by W. C. Whittleb, steel worker. In the chase the accused man stumbled into the arms of Chief of Police C. Scudero.

Whittleb claims that the accused man was peeping into his home and that he had vainly chased him. He declares that latter he went on a hunt for Sarghetti and found him peeping into a window of another home.

The line of march will form at Twenty-third street and Macdonald avenue and will proceed to Second street where the band and other organizations will be transported by cars to the Natatorium, arriving there at approximately two-thirty o'clock.

Mayor W. W. Scott, representing the city of Richmond, and Councilman E. J. Garrard, representing the West Side and President P. M. Sanford, representing the Richmond Chamber of Commerce, will deliver the principal addresses at the ceremonies which are scheduled to begin immediately after the arrival of the parade at the natatorium.

Following the words of dedication to be delivered by Dr. Thomas A. Boyer, two Richmond children, to whom will be the honor of being the first swimmers in the new pool, will plunge into the water. Exhibition diving and swimming by a corps of skilled swimmers will follow the dedication ceremonies and at four o'clock the pool will be opened to the public for the first time. Music during the ceremonies and in the parade will be furnished by the Richmond Municipal band and the Richmond Union high school band.

According to City Manager James A. McVittie, representatives from the San Rafael, Fleishacker, Athens and Neptune Beach teams will be present and take part in the program.

NAVY DIRIGIBLE LOS ANGELES BEING GROOMED FOR FIRST FLIGHT OF YEAR IN GIANT LAKEHURST HANGAR

Final preparations were being made, at the time this photograph was taken, at the Naval Air Station at Lakehurst, N. J. for the first 1926 flight of the German-built dirigible Los Angeles. It is probable that the great airship will take to the air about April 1st.

MOCKING BIRD BLOCKS TRAFFIC

TONOPAH, Nev., Mar. 17.—Birds and flowers are none too plentiful in this desert country and when a mocking bird, perched upon the cornice of a two-story brick structure on Tonopah's main street the other morning, treated the natives to a real bird concert it was not long before the performer had an audience of most of the population of the business section of the town. It is probably the first time in any town or city where a mocking bird has been the means of blocking automobile traffic for 30 minutes. This is what happened here when this feathered visitor regaled the town with his musical program.

"Red Streak" Is Captured by S. F.
Prohibition Force

(By Universal Service)

SAN FRANCISCO, March 17.—A red headed beauty known as the "Red Streak" who has been sought for months by prohibition officers as one of the most active Los Angeles to San Francisco booze runners, was arrested late today.

Her capture with a male companion was made in Mission street when her roadster carrying 19 cases of Scotch whiskey was overtaken by prohibition agents.

"The Red Streak" gave her name as Mrs. Lucille Clifford Johnston her companion gave the name of Barnett Kay. Both said they were from Los Angeles. They were questioned for hours at Prohibition headquarters but refused to divulge any information that would assist the law enforcement officers.

Committee Named
For Drawing Up Of
A Suitable Lease

The meeting, and introduced Fred D. Parr, thanking him for the courtesy in coming to Richmond and explaining what he had to offer.

Parr stated that he believed Richmond had a great future if a general plan of development of the water front was adopted. So far as the leasing of the present wharf was concerned he was not interested unless a more comprehensive plan could be agreed upon. "The profits to be derived out of your present wharf" said Parr "will not be great. What Richmond needs is more industries, and if these could be persuaded to locate upon your water front, then the city would derive its indirect benefits through pay rolls, increased valuations and in many other ways. Your lands will have to be made more available for shipping and industries. A five year proposition, in the form of a lease could not be entertained. I have a 25 year lease of Oakland property at the present time, but it should have been 50 years. Through the short period of the lease, I have lost many industries."

"There are improvements that would have to be made to your present facility, such as the extending the outer wharf a distance of about 200 feet easterly, the building of a pile wharf and transit shed on the inner harbor, and the dredging of the channel to a greater depth. Approximately these increased facilities would necessitate a bond issue of about $500,000, but this money would not have to be provided until after such a time, that we had demonstrated that we were capable of bringing other industries to the harbor and also increased tonnage."

Parr further stated that when Oakland leased its present ground to him that the Oakland Chamber of Commerce and practically every civic organization protested to the council, but since the development had taken place, all of them now endorsed the move. "We originally had 68 acres," said Parr, "and all of it has been subdivided with the exception of about a block of land I am looking to the future, and that is one of the reasons why I am interested in Richmond. I believe I have industries in mind that could be persuaded to locate here."

Meetings of the committee and the Parr interests will be held and as soon as something tangible is agreed upon, it will be submitted to the council for its approval or rejection.

The proposal that was submitted to the Chamber of Commerce by the Parr interests last December, was gone over but nothing definitely concerning the provisions in it, agreed upon.

The provision in it regarding rentals provided that all sums received from the operation of the property should be set up as
